PRICES IN CALIFORNIA.

The State of California was born in a whirlpool of prosperity and high prices. A sudden demand for almost everything, and no supply worth naming, induced a rate of charges perfectly unnatural and extravagant. Time has softened them down, of course, but not with that fairness and strict attention to equity that commercial sagacity would suggest and the spirit of the times call for. The time has been when $5 was a very common price for a day's labor, and five per cent a month the usual interest on money. These things have fallen, Oh, how low! The labor to $2 or less, the interest to one per cent. But in many departments of business there has been no corresponding reductions. In these old flush times our public salaries and fees were inaugurated, and our ratio of taxation, and they have held their own, almost in tact. Look where we will, we see an unexplained difference in the gradual adjustment than has been made.

All the great staples have come down to a low grade. Labor, money, wheat, beef, fruit, vegetables and clothing are all, perhaps, just about what they should be. But there has not been an equitable regulation, nor is there any uniformity of prices, even in different localities. Salaries hold their own very well. In most countries three per cent. is collected on all assessments. When money let at five per cent. per month, this tax is almost confiscation.

In almost every direction the same inequality exists. In San Francisco you can get a good meal for 25 cents, while in most other places it is half a dollar. Some small trades seem to hold their own with wonderful tenacity. While labor has come down from $6 to $2 per day, and board from $19 to $4 per week, you pay the same for shaving, boot blacking, washing, and many minor matters, as in 1852. Our prices of amusement, lectures etc., hold the same rates. California ought to be the cheapest and pleasantest place in the world to live in, and it will be when taxes and other things find their proper level and proportion. It is the duty of every good citizen to be circumspect in all his outlay, and to see that this happy state of things comes in the shortest time.—California paper.

FATE OF THE APOSTLES.—St. Matthew is supposed to have suffered martyrdom, or was put to death by the sword, at the city of Ethiopia.

St. Mark was dragged through the streets of Alexandria, in Egypt, till he expired.

St. Luke was hanged upon an olive tree in Greece.

St. John was put into a cauldron of boiling oil at Rome, and escaped death. He afterwards died a natural death at Ephesus, in Asia.

St. James the Great was beheaded at Jerusalem.

St. James the Less was thrown from a pinnacle or wing of the temple, and then beaten to death with a fuller's club.

St. Philip was hanged up against a pillar at Hierapolis, a city of Phrygia.

St. Bartholomew was flayed alive by the command of a barbarous king.

St. Andrew was bound to a cross, whence he preached to the people till he expired.

St. Thomas was run through the body by a lance, near Milipar, in the East Indies.

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.—In 1807 Fulton took out the first patent for the invention of the steamboat.

The first steamboat that made regular trips across the Atlantic Ocean were the Sirius and the Great Western in 1833.

In 1813 the streets of London were for the first time lighted with gas.

About the year 1832 the first railroad in the United States was completed.

In 1840 the first experiments in photography were made by Daguerre.

The anthracite coal business may be said to have begun in 1820.

In 1836 the first patent for the invention of matches was granted.

In 1844 the first telegram was sent.

The first successful trial of a reaper took place in 1833.

In 1845 Elias Howe obtained a patent for his first sewing-machine.

ANOTHER ADVERTISED WIFE has been heard from. In the Fresno (Cal.) Expositor, Geo. Sutherland warned all persons not to trust his wife, Alice, as she had left his bed and board; and that lady responds after this fashion: "Well, George, you need not warn any one about trusting me, for your word is not worth anything. You had better come and pay the debts you owe here and then I might get something on your word, but now they would rather give it to me. Why, you big fool, to warn people about trusting me, for where you live you cannot get a pair of boots or anything else. As for my leaving your bed and board, you did not have any bed, for most of it my mother gave me, and your board was very poor stuff."

BISHOP AMES tells a story of a slave owner in Missouri, in older times of negro vassalage, who said to his chattel: "Pompey, I hear you are a great preacher." "Yes, massa, de Lord do help me powerfully sometimes." "Well, Pompey, don't you think the negroes steal little things on the plantation?" "I's mighty afraid they does, massa." Then Pompey I want you to preach a sermon to the negroes against stealing." After a brief lecture, Pompey replied: "You see massa, dat wouldn't do cause 'twould throw such a coolness over de meetin'."

FRED HART, the sprightly correspondent of the Reese River Reveille, writes as follows to that journal concerning the hotel at which he is at present stopping in San Francisco: "Through the center of the house a shaft is sunk, and it contains a cage on which the guests ascend to and descend from the different levels. I live on the first level and Senator Farrell lives on the third level, but you have to go through several drifts and crosscuts to get from the shaft to his stope, and he is talking of sinking a shaft down to my level."

Governor Pacheco, of California, has received a letter from a lady in the East, inquiring the whereabouts of Thomas H. Darling, who, when last heard from, some years ago, was in San Francisco. There is money awaiting him, of which he can get information by applying to the Governor.

NEW MEXICO AND ARIZONA.

[The soldier who wrote the following doggerel ought to have been shot, rather than confined in the guard-house at Fort Union, as in that case he never would have perpetrated a libel on two such aspiring Territories as New Mexico and Arizona. The Colorado Chieftain is responsible, and participates in giving it publicity.]

Fierce Mars I bid a glad farewell,
And turn my back upon Belona
To photograph in doggerel
New Mexico and Arizona.
The stinging grass, the thorny plants,
And all the prickly things that grow;
The thieving, started inhabitants,
Who look so picturesque in story;
The dusty, long, hot, dreary way,
Where 'neath a blazing sun you totter
To reach camp at close of day,
And find it destitute of water.
The dying mule, the dried up spring,
The novel writers' solemn notice;
The song of blood mosquitoes sing,
And midnight howling of coyotes;
Tartarus and ectoparasites,
Horned toads and piercing mesquite daggers,
With thorny bushes, grass and weeds,
To bleed the traveler as he staggers.
Why point things in rosy light,
And never tell the simple fact thus—
How one sits down to rest at night
And often squats upon a cactus!
The night birds' music, sweet and clear,
Is over pictured not a leetle;
A search might prove the enchanted ear
The habitation of a beetle.
And oft at night the sentinel,
Who, dozing, dreams of distant battle,
Is roused in fright to hear the yell
Of Indians who have nipped his candle.
As desert, mountain, river and sand
Comprise the topographic features,
There's little left at my command
Except to paint the living creatures.
In point of energy never cease,
The wild Apaches are the head men,
And so in fairness I commence
To tell you something of the red men.
Each mountain gulch contains a live
Or the marauding sons of thunder,
Who somehow manage and contrive
To live upon mesquite and plunder.
From towering crags they watch the route
Over which a train is slowly creeping,
And, with a wild, blood-curdling shout
Across the desert come they sweeping;
But here their valor takes a turn,
On meeting with the least resistance
They shun the fight, and quickly learn
To keep a very respectful distance.
The Indian trembles when he hears
Around his head the bullets whistle,
And most unpleasant to his ears
Is crack of carbine or of pistol.
His choicest plan is to keep the road
Goes through some dusky canyon,
To squint in ambush like a toad,
Surrounded by each swart companion;
And with noise enough to freeze the marrow
To pour a volley in your face.
Composed of harmless yells and arrows,
But should you stand and make the fight,
With carbine raised from off your saddle,
The "noble red" will take to flight,
Or bluish to think he must kneel.
Too long my pen has dwelt upon
These foes to railroads, schools and labor,
A few short years and they are gone
Beyond the reach of prayer or savor.
There is no fairer law than this
Which gives to Caesar what is Caesar's,
Yet this is not a land of fat
Because the people are called Greasers,
Those natives, in a Yankee's eyes,
Have neither brains nor vigor;
A most unhappy compromise
Between the Indian and the nigger.
Their language is a mongrel whine
From which the meaning seems to vanish
Like strength from lager beer or wine,
A parody upon the Spanish.
On what they live besides the air
You may perhaps be interested,
They have as queer a bill of fare
As human stomachs ever digested.
They eat fríjoles, corn, cotton,
And on a hog's intestines riot;
Tortillas, sheep's head, hair and horns,
With chili for their favorite diet;
Pineche, watermelon seed,
Bad eggs, onions and peas,
But when they are hard up for food
They live upon mesquite beans solely.
The Greaser seldom eats or drinks,
His mind is wrapped in scanty clothing;
O looks he never dreams of shirts,
And labor is his special loathing.
But little care he ever feels,
So he but apes the Spanish hero,
With monstrous spur upon his heels,
And on his head a huge mondo.
He grimly smiles at Gringo jokes,
Though he has not a single claco.
His cigarette of bad tobacco,
Smoking and loitering in the shade,
Their lazy souls no thought perplexes;
But make a chimney, undismayed,
Out of the noses of both sexes.
They tell a thousand barefaced lies,
To all the saints in heaven appealing,
Confess their sins with fearful eyes,
Devoutly pray, but keep on stealing.
They go to church, believe in hell,
Where their own torments must be hot,
They play the fiddle, fang a bull,
And worship God with drums and shot.
The women dress upon a plan
Resembling French Zouaves or Turcos;
Appear but little less than scarecrows.
Will face concealed from human sight,
And legs exposed to all that passes,
Their color varies in the light
Between new leather and molasses.
In efforts to improve the race,
The "fair ones" never seem to waver,
But labor with a christian grace
And freely give away their favor.
They look on virtue as a sham,
As "free love" suits their constitution;
If one should tell they take it ill,
And see no harm in prostitution.
In filth they live and from it spring,
The women breed like mice or rabbits,
Which seems to be a certain thing
With people of their low habits.
Upon their heads in triumph reign,
Great swarms of vermin fat and saucy,
These vorages of the Spanish man,
Cruise fearless o'er an ocean glossy,
Their dwell in hovels built of mud,
Where dogs and goats at will may wander
While slop and filth, a balmy flood,
In streams around the door meander.
Their mode of travel on the road
Would frighten one who never met a
Dirty, screaming, stupid load
Of Greasers in old carretas.
Great wooden wheels, devoid of grease,
And oxen rushing with a vengeance,
A noise like forty thousand geese,
Or like a crowd of new steam engines.
They plow the soil with forked logs,
For fuel dig the earth with shovels,
Cut grass with hoes, chain up their hogs,
And keep their horses in their hovels.
When Gabriel plays his final trump,
And all the nations are paraded
For grand inspection in a lump,
This breed will prove the most degraded.
An earthquake which should shake the land
From great subterranean motion,
And leave this tract of barren sand,
The pavement of a heaving ocean;
Some huge convulsive wave shake,
Some terrible spasmodic movement,
Sufficient but to leave a lake,
Would be a most desired improvement.
I've not, in picturing this or that,
Been either brilliant or pathetic,
But told of facts in simple rhyme
By far more truthful than poetic.
My photograph, I must confess,
The country does by no means flatter,
The people and their customs less,
But it's true, that's what's the matter.
If any think me too severe,
Or call my yarn a wicked libel,
I'll take to prove myself sincere,
My "days" on a Mormon Bible.

SHAW, who stabbed himself five times the other day at Truckee, California, is sincerely repentant, and says he will never touch a drop of liquor if he recovers. Twice before, during fits of delirium tremens, he has attempted suicide.

Seminal Weakness.
Seminal emission is the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following morbid sympoms, unless counteracted by scientific medical treatment, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves or rattling of chariots, unconsciousness about the knees, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintance, a disposition to society, loss of memory, pimples and various eruptions about the face, hectic discharges, furrowed tongue, sleeplessness, nervousness, night sweats, womanly and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, you should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure.

Cured at Home.
Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicine promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, in any particular part of the country, with full and plain directions for use.

Persons writing to the Doctor will please state the name of the paper they see this advertisement in.

package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.
